Congressman King to join Governor Jindal at Story County GOP Breakfast

AMES-- Congressman Steve King will be joining potential Republican presidential candidate Governor Bobby Jindal this Saturday, May 16 in Ames, Iowa for a special breakfast at 10:00 a.m. with the Story County GOP at the Oakwood Road Church located at 2400 Oakwood Road in Ames. Congressman King is a strong advocate for Iowa's role as the First in the Nation in the presidential nominating process. As the long-time governor of Louisiana, Jindal has become a strong contender for the Republican primary for President of the United States for 2016. Also appearing will be the popular conservative talk show host Simon Conway from WHO. Tickets for the event, which also covers the cost of breakfast, will be $20 at the door and only $15 if pre-registered online at storycountygop.com.

Also, 2012 GOP Iowa Caucus winner Senator Rick Santorum will be appearing on Sunday, May 17 for a special meet and greet in Nevada at Quirks Grill & Bar located at 835 6th Street beginning at 4:00 p.m. Santorum is a former U.S. Senator from Pennsylvania that was a dark horse candidate in 2012 that made a strong showing in the Republican primary and is now exploring a potential second run at the presidency of the United States in 2016. Be quick to reserve your spot at the meet and greet.

"The road to the White House starts right here in Iowa," said Story County GOP Chair Brett Barker. "We are excited to visit with Governor Jindal and Senator Santorum and these are great opportunities for Story County voters to get to know two high profile potential presidential candidates."

All reservations for the breakfast with Governor Jindal and the meet and greet with Senator Santorum can be made at storycountygop.com. Also, those interested in becoming Century Club members of the Story County GOP may look at the website for details on becoming a member.
